What are my choices?

A Retractable Awning
A Wooden Structure
An Aluminum Roof

Retractable Canvas Awning

- Size restrictions
- Limited wind capacity
- Not engineered for rain or snow
- Darkens interior of home
- Molds & dry rots
- Does not reduce sun's heat

Wooden Structures

- Wood needs constant upkeep
- Difficult to match existing structure
- Darkens interior of home
- Will not reduce the sun's heat
- Pergolas provide no coverage

Aluminum Roof Systems

- Feels cramped, cave-like
- Trailer park looking
- Does not allow light through
- Darkens interior of home
- Extremely hot and uncomfortable
- Exceedingly expensive

Protecting your investment for years to come

- Acrylic vs. Polycarbonate: A quantitative and qualitative comparison.
- Acrylic will not yellow over time. UV light damages Polycarbonate to make it yellow
- and brittle.
- Acrylic is a more rigid plastic allowing it to hold greater load. (Snow)
- Polycarbonate is
- flexible and will bend under load.
- Acrylic has 92% light transmission whereas polycarbonate has less at 89%
- Acrylic is less likely to scratch than polycarbonate
- Acrylic blocks 100% of UV Rays
